MANY PLANS FOR NEW BUILDING.

Messrs. Jackson, Rogers and Wilder Conferring With Architects and Builders.

HANDSOME STRUCTURE PROMISED.

The time having arrived for consideration of the plans and specifications of the architects who put in bids for the construction of the proposed city school building, there proved to be no dearth of material to choose from.

Architects came in person in many cases and have gone before the committee, submitting their plans and making full explanation of the same. The school board who considered and passed upon these plans and who will determine for this and for future generations what character of structure, at a stipulated price, Daytona shall have, are Messrs. William Jackson, C. H. Rogers and A. J. Wilder, all good men and qualified with the desire to give Daytona the very best her $40,000 will buy.

When it is stated that they have probably twenty-five sets of plans and specifications, these papers voluminous, technical, and to the layman somewhat opaque, and that hours might be consumed in an intelligent perusal and discussion of one set of papers, the average citizen will not envy the local school board the job it has on hand. It is a case in which all their grave and gumption can be employed, and patience will be to do her perfect work.

Many who have submitted plans have representatives on the ground while a number of others sent in their papers by registry or by express. Those having personal representatives will first be heard and then the board will continue its examination of the plans sent in without a representative. The board has nothing especial to give out at this time more than to say that they are convinced after only a short examination of such plans and specifications as have been given out that the sum authorized by the bond issue will give Daytona a very handsome, modern and satisfactory school building.

When the board shall have finished its work and made its decision the Daily News will give without delay all the important details

Assessing Difficult.

City Assessor W. H. Edmondson and his assistant, Giles Bliven, are having some odd experiences, especially among the colored people, in making the new assessment. Mr. Bliven is holding grimly to his post but says he is prepared to leave town when the job is finished, as among the colored citizens they find it almost impossible to get a statement as to values, and it is difficult also to get locations, as property holders almost universally refuse to show their deeds

Dr. A. O'Neill's father and brother, D. J. and Albert O'Neill, arrived Wednesday night from Ridgewood, N. J. Albert O'Neill will remain with his brother during the winter but his father will be here only during the holidays, as his official position, as chief of the fire department at Ridgewood, demands his return.

SPECTACULAR RESCUE BY FIREMAN.

Fireman Descends Swaying Ladder From 8th Floor With Woman, Her Clothes Aflame.

A MOST REMARKABLE RESCUE.

(By United Press.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Achieving one of the most spectacular scenes ever witnessed at a fire in New York, Fireman Mullen today descended a swaying extension ladder from the fifth floor of a building in Harlem, with an unconscious woman whose clothing was in flames. Only one death occurred as a result of the fire, but had it not been for the heroism of the firemen there would have been at least a dozen. Mrs. Alice Tooker, the woman so heroically rescued is terribly burned, and may die.

Three firemen were slightly burned.

THE DAILY NEWS GETS LOG BOOKS.

A Handsome Remembrance From New York's Big Printer That Hits Center.

A much prized package from Commodore C. C. Burgoyne, New York's big minute printer, for the Daily News editorial and business heads, proves to be just the thing and in the nick of time.

The Christmas remembrances are handsome, large volumes of "1900 Log Book" executed in the style, and with the quality of material which have made the Burgoyne printing establishment so popular in the most wide awake and bustling business metropolis in the world.

It is a book of something over 365 pages, and one of the first pages is this statement:

"Capacity: More than one thousand pages, the size of this log book, in one day."

It is the successful execution of such tremendous undertakings as this that has made New York world-famous for daring achievements.

On the front cover is reproduced a picture familiar to Daytonian's the "Sweetheart."

PEACE IS TO BE PATCHED UP NOW.

Former Foreign Minister Is Off For Paris To Right Venezuela with French and Dutch.

(By United Press.)

THE HAGUE, Dec. 24.—The Foreign Office has received an official communication from Willemstad today, that the former foreign minister Jose Jouis de Paul, has left Curacao for Paris and The Hague to open negotiations for the settlement of Venezuela's differences with France and Holland.

ABSORBING TOPIC IS TARIFF.

The Eyes of the Industrial World Will Be Focused On Congress For Weeks To Come.

TARIFF ON LUMBER TO BE CUT.

(By United Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—For ten months the interest of Industrial America and of the great manufacturing nations of the world will center on the several meetings of the Republican members of the Ways and Means committee of the House, at which the new tariff bill will be framed. The big problem involves rates of duty on sugar, hides, lumber, coal, silk, wool, pottery, chemicals, and iron. From the present outlook the tariff on lumber will be reduced. Hides will probably be admitted free, as also will be Philippine sugar and coal.

His Death an Enigma.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Whether Van Wight Sheldon, the New York University student found dying in the basement of Dean Snow's home from a bullet wound, suicided as the result of mental perversion or was the victim of an intruder seeking information as to the whereabouts of Miss Helen Gould, patroness of the institution, is still a debated question, notwithstanding the private inquest at the office of the coroner today.

Dolphin at Willemstad.

(By United Press.)

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Dec. 24.—The United States gunboat Dolphin is now in the harbor. Residents gave the vessel a noisy welcome this morning.

The next regular monthly meeting of the D. A. R. will be held Wednesday, January 6, 1909, at the home of Mrs. Congdon, of Halifax avenue. Responses: Dates of important events in Connecticut and Rhode Island.

MRS. SNIDER AGAIN MARRIES.

Recently Divorced Wife of The Catsup King, Again on Matrimonial Sea.

NOW SHE IS MRS. SENGSTAK.

Mrs. Effie K. Snider, who was a few days ago divorced by her husband, Thomas A. Snider, the wealthy catsup manufacturer, is again married, the groom being Dr. R. P. E. Sengstak.

The following is from the Jacksonville Times-Union of yesterday:

At the parsonage of the East Jacksonville Presbyterian church last night Mrs. Effie K. Snider and Dr. Ernest P. E. Sengstak were married by the Rev. Paul F. Brown, pastor of the church. Only a few friends and relatives were present at the ceremony. The bride, who is a very attractive young woman, comes from a well known old-old English family, and has a number of friends in Florida. Dr. Sengstak is also from a well known family and has a beautiful winter home in Daytona. He is a member of the Jacksonville Board of Trade and has a number of friends here who will be pleased to learn that he has secured such a fair companion for his bride.

A BOSTON BULL TAKES HOUSTON'S CALF.

Commercial Traveller Wastes His Affections on An Unappreciative Canine.

Over at the A. A. club house yesterday David H. Houston, a traveling representative of the Carolina Portland Cement Company had an experience that will make him very chary about pouring out his affections where they don't seek to. The treacherous conduct of an unappreciative Boston bull has given emphasis to the importance of letting distance lend enchantment to the view when you are admiring bull dogs.

Mr. Houston was over at the club house, and, upon espying the pantaletted-membered bristle, proceeded at once to pet him. Turning suddenly to reach for something, the display noticed Mr. Houston's movements as hostile, and he sprang upon him, seizing him by the calf of the leg, and had not Attorney Oates been quick with assistance the bull would have made it serious for the visitor. As it was, he got off with only a lame leg.

A SUSPENSION FOR STOCK BROKERS.

Marshal Spader & Co., New York Stock Brokers, Get Hard Sentence.

RAN COUNTER TO EXCHANGE RULES

(By Unit-d Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Marshal Spader & Co., one of the largest brokerage firms in New York, was suspended for three years today by the governors of the New York Stock Exchange because of violation of the rules of the exchange in doing business "in a manner inconsistent with justice and equitable practice of trade."

W. Francis Melvin is to be united in marriage to Miss Marjorie Valentine, at the bride's home in Omaha, Neb., tonight. The young couple will be at home after January 1st, at Billings, Mont. Mr. Melvin is well known here, having been employed in the postoffice last winter.

HOLLY HILL HAS A NEW SENSATION.

Enjoys The First Experience with Foreign Talent in Entertainment at School House.

Holly Hill had its first taste of foreign talent Wednesday night when the Brose Entertainers, a musical comedy company from Minnesota, gave a most excellent entertainment at the school house.

Mr. Brose is a fine dialect and lightning change artist as well as musician; and is ably assisted by Miss Graener, who is also an accomplished vocal and instrumental performer. They play a great variety of instruments and kept the audience in a roar of laughter and applause throughout the evening.

As Florida is new to them, and they are playing only in small towns they are meeting with some new and highly interesting experiences. At Bayard they gave an open air entertainment. They will give another entertainment at Holly Hill tonight and then go on to Orange City, their next booking.

Miss Eva Hawley is at home from Tampa to spend the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Hawley, on North Ridgewood avenue. Her sister, Miss Josephine, will accompany her on her return to Tampa in order to take a business course in college there.

MEMORIAL ERECTED ON SPOT WHERE LINCOLN WAS BORN

The Lincoln memorial on the old Lincoln homestead near Hodgenville Ky., is almost completed and will be the scene of a great dedication ceremony on Feb. 12 next, the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. President Roosevelt will be the principal speaker of the occasion. The memorial building includes the little log cabin where the great emancipator first saw the light of day. The new structure was built entirely through popular subscription by the Lincoln Farm association, of which Governor Joseph W. Folk of Missouri is president.

The wagon returned in the time honored fashion and numerous times trimmings. There will be two trees at the inn Christmas eve night. The servants as well as the guests and members of the family will be remembered. Miss Lukewarm and Mr. Dunson guests of the inn, are acting as active masters in the joining proceedings.

The Editor's Role in the Mail.

When the nineteenth century was in its last half century, editors availed themselves of the freedom of the press to print in the mail, a small circle or twice the size of the postoffice of the given name. The editor had been occupied what to do with the manager of the suffrage court, and the postoffice was across the main corridor of the building on the same floor. When a member of the legislature desired to send a "mailer" he had only to cross over to the mails department and pass through it to the little circular iron railroad, which was about the size of a pantry. The Echo in the Wall was the first weekly newspaper, and for all of the few editions was short, though to the point. There was been published, it have been enjoyed for six months, a veritable multitude of the sixth product, there were edited and issued and thrown out very little else. They served, however, as an announcement for the fourth and when the Echo was received, as was often the case, answers are half-and-written scrolls, in the postoffice.—Washington Post.

The Whole Half Clock.

In the most ordinary form the single half clock is a short, well made clock, a good timekeeper, contained in a metal metal plated case set or screwed to a wall or bulkhead. The face of the clock, the dial, is of dull metal, and its pointers are of steel, so that with its polished case the whole clock has a metallic, well, serviceable look.

Attached to a projection of the board upon which the clock is placed, and while the clock and immediately below it, is the clock's gong, with the hammers—there are two of them—hanging down, but it is more commonly through an opening in the clock's case and striking on the gong's inner side. It is a stately gong two or three inches in diameter, and it sounds with a strong, clear, resolute note when the hammer strikes it. By this clock's help you can tell the time in the small hour, but the hours are struck as they are at sea on a ship's bell.—New York Sun.

Fame.

There was no doubt about it. He was very much vexed to attend the village grocery store and demanded to see the proprietor.

"Did any of your store ever paper for Mr. Parker?" he said when the proper appeared.

"Well, yes," said Mr. Parker genially, "believe I did."

"Then you told her that they were fresh eggs," continued the visitor.

"Well, yes, I guess so, too I did," said Mr. Parker.

"But, see here, Parker, you had no business to say that they were fresh eggs."

"Why not?" I inquire 'em for fresh—from H. Wiley, too."

"I don't believe it. H. Wiley's an honest man."

"Well, H said it all right. He came in here with his basket full of 'em and put 'em down on the counter and told me all for a lot of early chickens."

"What was that?"

"Oh, I think 'bout six weeks ago, I guess."—Baltimore American.

How to Know.

A farmer who was gathering up overcoat clothing in the country purchased a pair of discarded trousers at a farmhouse and remarked to the man of the house as he paid for the stuff in coal scuttle:

"I see, sir, that you are about to lose your mind or a overcoat."

"Guess you are right," said the discriminating dwelling farmer, "but will you tell me how the hain Hill you found that out?"

"Easy enough," said the cheerful customer as he settled back on the seat of the peddling wagon. "I notice that these old pants are completely lacked out, so far as the part of use you are given to is concerned, but they show signs of wear anywhere else."—Tit-Bits.

Just His Luck.

"William, Freddie informs me that his teacher has decided to advance him from the sixth to the seventh grade owing to the fine improvement and the painstaking attention to his studies."

"Indeed! That's just my luck."

"What, what makes you say that?"

"I had it all figured out that I was going to be asked to speak at the end of the month. Now it will be necessary to get a new set of resolutions."—Detroit Free Press.

SEABREEZE, Dec. 19.—Miss Evelyn and friend, Outer Banks, left this afternoon for Bethlehem, where the former enters upon his duties as assistant, and the latter as the assistant. The young men had planned to be at their Christmas dinner with Miss parents. Ralph Evenson is expected tomorrow from Fort Pierce, and Miss Evenson is home to Indian for the holidays, so that the usual family reunion at this period of the year will be augmented with pleasure. But "Pleasures are like poppies spread—a moment seen is an instance." However that as several promptly to the call of business and departed to good spirits to make it their disappointment.

Vance Richmond arrives yesterday from the North on a visit to his mother, at the home on Ocean boulevard.

Miss Grace Legge left Friday afternoon for Fresno, where she will spend Christmas with friends.

Yesterday was the fiftieth anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Hart's wedding day. Mr. and Mrs. Hart are pleasantly located in their pretty new cottage on Valley street, erected by Mr. Hart with very little outside assistance and he is still to the front when work opens another house, a window or a building.

John Madison and wife of Evenson, Ind., who came in party with Mr. and Mrs. Swanson Light, have taken apartments in the Allen apartment house, on Valley street.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Woodward's household was made complete by the arrival of their pet fox terrier, Quiz, an unusually intelligent and attractive representative of the breed. Quiz was overjoyed to be with the family again, and the family reciprocated most heartily, and now he may be seen any fine day taking his auto ride.

Mrs. C. B. Pope wishes to thank her numerous little friends, through the Daily News, for their marble bouquet-holders for her resident and pensive. Everyone she was native of a Jersey home, and the children are especially endeared to her. Her Christmas present in each of the fifty-three pedals of the Scarlet was a pretty butterfly basket.

Miss Wetherby arrives today from St. Augustine, where she has been attending the Deaf Mute Institute, and will spend the holidays at home with the parents.

Australia's First Theater.

The first recorded production of a play in Australia took place in June of the year 1789. It was called "The Recruiting Officer." The proceeds of the first play night netted £30 went to the family of a man who had been executed. In January, 1796, a regular and really playhouse was opened, and the public had to pay a shilling admission. The performances were made in Hall, which, four or five years taking the place of the usual company.—London Standard.

DAYTONA BEACH, Dec. 19.—Miss Pearl Spaulding returned Tuesday from a few days visit with friends at DeLand.

Arthur Dunson arrives today from DeLand and will spend the holidays with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. C. D. Dunson. His many friends, Mr. Dunson's Philadelphia acquaintances will welcome and will enjoy the hospitality of the parsonage for a time.

Mrs. Scragin, whose summer home is at Binghamton, N. Y., is sojourning for winter home on the Halifax for the first time in three years. Within that period she has been bereft of both husband and daughter. Mrs. Rosen, who went to spend the season here with her.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Donnelly, who own several cottages at Daytona Beach, were given yesterday afternoon, leaving after their property interests and calling in friends. Mr. and Mrs. Donnelly and son Alfred, who is a student at Columbia college, N. Y., arrived at Daytona Saturday night and are guests at the Brevard during their stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Burt Peters, who have been occupying the Taylor cottage on Grandview avenue, will remove to the Donnelly cottage on the corner of Live Oak and Seabreeze avenue.

PORT ORANGE

PORT ORANGE, Dec 24.—There is quite a home-coming among the young people this week. We have heard so far of Chauncy Vose, Richard Sparkman, Elmo Dupont, Miss Mary Fair, Miss Ruth Brahm, Miss Wilbur and sister, Miss May, and Miss May Howes.

Dr. Reed and his daughter arrived Friday, and are at home in their cottage on the river shore.

Capt. C. C. Howes and wife are visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Howes

Thursday of last week the first church tea of this season was held in Ridgewood Hall. Mrs. Meeker was the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Wiese, Miss Simeon and Miss George. These teas will be given every Thursday afternoon during the winter, and all are cordially invited. New Years Eve. The ladies of Grace church will give a Doughnut Supper. There will be singing by a quartet from the North, and recitations. All are invited to come and have a good time in Ridgewood Hall.

There was a select dance in Ridgewood Hall Tuesday evening

A Wedding Decoration.

Whether it was a mistake or a joke or simply an example of bad taste is a question that is still puzzling most of the passengers. But the matter about that. It certainly was a floral masterpiece. Full four feet it stood from the ground, in the form of a cross. Roses white and red composed the body of the cross, and daisy white immortelles and green leaves formed the trimmings. In the center the word "Peace" was spelled out in rosebuds.

Everybody in the car admired the offering, and when the boy set it down on the floor all leaned forward to examine it more closely. At length one old gentleman stood up and readjusted his glasses in order to get a better look at it.

"That is a mighty pretty posy you've got there," he said. "Who, may I ask, is dead?"

The boy giggled.

"Nobody I know of," he said. "This ain't for a funeral; it's for a wedding."

The old gentleman sat down heavily.

"Good Lord!" he said. "What idiot ever ordered 'Peace' inscribed on a wedding decoration?"

The rest of the passengers smiled, and many of them, being surprised wondered as well, but nobody ventured an explanation.—New York Times.

Death and Snuff.

A certain Margaret Wilson of Westminster, who was an inveterate snuff taker, enjoined that a quantity of Scotch snuff should be placed in her coffin. She also ordered that the arrangements connected with her funeral should be as follows: "Six men to be my bearers who are known to be the greatest snuff takers in the parish of St. James, Westminster. Instead of mourning, each to wear a snuff colored beaver hat, which I desire may be bought for the purpose and given to them. Six maidens of my old acquaintance to bear my pall, each to carry a box filled with the best Scotch snuff, to take for their refreshment as they go along." Snuff was also to be thrown on the threshold of deceased's dwelling before the cortege passed out, snuff was to be strewn on the ground at every twenty yards in advance of the coffin, and the officiating clergyman's fee was to be proportionate to the quantity of snuff he consumed during the ceremony.—London Globe.

What the Peruvians Believed.

A unique idea of the future state was that of the ancient Peruvians. As the disembodied soul winged its way to eternity it encountered two rocks upon one of which it must needs rest. The choice was determined by the morality of the life in the flesh. If it rested upon the left hand rock it was instantly translated to "Pu," or oblivion, a state analogous to the Nirvana of the orient. If through early misdeeds, however, the unhappy spirit was guided to the right hand rock it entered into a purgatorial hell where funds grated away the flesh from all the bones in succession, after which the skeleton was relothed and sent back to earth for another try. There was no haste about this grating process. It took something over 10,000 years.

A Sporting Parson.

The inhibition of a hunting rector by his bishop reminds a correspondent that the Rev. Jack Russell, the famous west country sporting parson, was once cited to appear before the bishop of Exeter to answer charges of neglecting his spiritual and parochial duties, and he was also remonstrated with for keeping and following a pack of hounds. The charges were proved unfounded, and Russell refused to give up the sport, which he continued to pursue almost to the day of his death in 1883, at the age of eighty-eight. Besides being an inveterate hunter, he was, as his biographer pithily remarks, "a stanch supporter of Devonshire wrestlers, an admirable sparrer and an enthusiastic upholder of the virtues of Devonshire cider and cream." And in the pulpit he tried to reform conduct rather than to expound doctrine and was a stern denouncer of bad language, strong drink and "the filthy habit of smoking."—St. James' Gazette.

Disappearing Home Life.

The flat dweller ought not to keep a dog, prefers not to keep a cat, cannot have a garden, has no chance of keeping house, has no possible place for memories and, most emphatic of all has no use or accommodation for babies. Although it may be possible to make homes without kitchens or flowers or memories or cupboards, the spirit of home is hard to woo and win without any of them.—Fortnightly Review.

Go Right at It.

"Of course you know that germs communicate sickness?"

"Yes," answered the man who is apprehensive about his health, "and the worst of it is that they get right down to business in their communications. Instead of employing the scientific circumlocution of the medical profession."—Exchange.

Trying to Make a Hit.

Judge—Do you acknowledge the charge brought before the court of throwing your wife to the ground and knocking her head repeatedly against the floor? Prisoner (promptly)—I was only trying to make a hit with her, your honor.—Judge.

A Substitute.

"I am sorry, my dear sir, but I neglected to bring my surgical instruments with me."

"That will be all right, doctor. The plumber who has been working in the cellar has left his tools here."—Exchange.

The Aurora Borealis.

The aurora borealis, or northern light, is something that we have all heard about, but very few, perhaps, can give any explanation of it. No one definitely knows what causes it, but the scientists are pretty well agreed that it is due to electricity. They believe that the light is made by the recombination of the positive and negative electricity always in the upper and lower strata of air, respectively. M. Jensen in 1882 made a successful experiment in Finland in 1882. His object being to determine the nature of the auroras. He had the peak of a mountain surrounded by a copper wire, on which at intervals were tin nits. When he had charged the wire with electricity a yellow light appeared on the tin tips, and an examination of the light by the spectroscope revealed the greenish yellow ray that is a marked feature of the auroras. This evidence among scientists is almost convincing, for it is by means of the spectroscope that we discover the constituent parts of the sun and the stars.—Exchange.

"Thou Diest on Point of Fox."

Fox hunters were celebrated all through the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries for their excellent temper and mention of them is frequent in English drama. This is their history:

There was a certain Julian del Rel, believed to be a Moslem, who set up a forge at Toledo in the early part of the fifteenth century and became famous for the excellence of his sword blades, which were forged for swordmaking, it being supposed that the Moors furnished the art, as they did so many good things, from the east.

Julian del Rel's mark was a little dog, which came to be taken for a fox, and so the "fox blade" or simply "fox" for any good sword. See "Henry V.," act 4, scene 4, "Thou diest on point of fox." The braid came to be imitated in other places, and there are Solingen blades of comparatively modern manufacture which still bear the little dog of Julian del Rel.—London Notes and Queries.

A Royal Snake Slaughterer.

The "secretary bird" is one of the most peculiar birds in South Africa. It is royal game, and any person destroying one is liable to a fine of £50. Majestic looking birds, they stand about three feet high and generally go in pairs. They are of drab color, with black, feathery legs, and are valued for their propensity for killing snakes. Where the secretary bird is seen there are sure to be many reptiles about. The bird beats down its adversary first with one wing and then with the other, at the same time trampling on it with its feet until the snake is sufficiently stunned to catch it by the head with its bill. Then the bird rises far up in the air and drops its victim to the ground, to be killed. By this means thousands of venomous reptiles are destroyed.—London Scraps.

Natural History.

"Which is you been workin'?" asked Miss Mandy Brown.

PORT ORANGE

PORT ORANGE, Dec 24.—There is quite a home-coming among the young people this week. We have heard so far of Chauncy Vass, Richard Sparkman, Elmo Dupont, Miss Mary Fair, Miss Ruth Brohm, Miss Wilbur and sister, Miss May, and Miss May Howes.

Dr. Reed and his daughter arrived Friday, and are at home in their cottage on the river shore.

Capt. C. C. Howes and wife are visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Howes

Thursday of last week the first church tea of this season was held in Ridgewood Hall. Mrs. Meeker was the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Wiese, Miss Simcoe and Miss George. These teas will be given every Thursday afternoon during the winter, and all are cordially invited New Years Eve. The ladies of Grace church will give a Doughnut Supper. There will be singing by a quartet from the North, and recitations. All are invited to come and have a good time in Ridgewood Hall.

There was a select dance in Ridgewood Hall Tuesday evening

A Wedding Decoration.

Whether it was a mistake or a joke or simply an example of bad taste is a question that is still puzzling most of the passengers. But no matter about that. It certainly was a floral masterpiece. Full four feet it stood from the ground, in the form of a cross. Roses white and roses red composed the body of the cross, and dainty white blossoms and green leaves formed the trimmings. In the center the word "Peace" was spelled out in rosebuds.

Everybody in the car admired the offering, and when the boy set it down on the floor all leaned forward to examine it more closely. At length one old gentleman stood up and readjusted his glasses in order to get a better look at it.

"That is a mighty pretty posy you've got there," he said. "Who, may I ask, is dead?"

The boy giggled.

"Nobody 't I know of," he said. "This ain't for a funeral; it's for a wedding."

The old gentleman sat down heavily.

"Good Lord!" he said. "What idiot ever ordered 'Peace' inscribed on a wedding decoration?"

The rest of the passengers smiled, and many of them, being married wondered as well, but nobody ventured an explanation.—New York Times.

Death and Snuff.

A certain Margaret Wilson of Westminster, who was an inveterate snuff taker, enjoined that a quantity of Scotch snuff should be placed in her coffin. She also ordered that the arrangements connected with her funeral should be as follows: "Six men to be my bearers who are known to be the greatest snuff takers in the parish of St. James, Westminster. Instead of mourning, each to wear a snuff colored beaver hat, which I desire may be bought for the purpose and given to them. Six maidens of my old acquaintance to bear my pall, each to carry a box filled with the best Scotch snuff, to take for their refreshment as they go along." Snuff was also to be thrown on the threshold of deceased's dwelling before the cortege passed out, snuff was to be strewn on the ground at every twenty yards in advance of the coffin, and the officiating clergyman's fee was to be proportionate to the quantity of snuff he consumed during the ceremony.—London Globe.

What the Peruvians Believed.

A unique idea of the future state was that of the ancient Peruvians. As the disembodied soul winged its way to eternity it encountered two rocks, upon one of which it must needs rest. The choice was determined by the morality of the life in the flesh. If it rested upon the left hand rock it was instantly translated to "Po," or oblivion, a state analogous to the Nirvana of the orient. If through early misdeeds, however, the unhappy spirit was guided to the right hand rock it entered into a purgatorial hell where fiends grated away the flesh from all the bones in succession, after which the skeleton was reclothed and sent back to earth for another try. There was no haste about this grating process. It took something over 10,000 years.

A Sporting Parson.

The inhibition of a hunting rector by his bishop reminds a correspondent that the Rev. Jack Russell, the famous west country sporting parson, was once cited to appear before the bishop of Exeter to answer charges of neglecting his spiritual and parochial duties, and he was also remonstrated with for keeping and following a pack of hounds. The charges were proved unfounded, and Russell refused to give up the sport, which he continued to pursue almost to the day of his death in 1883, at the age of eighty-eight. Besides being an insatiable hunter, he was, as his biographer pithily remarks, "a stanch supporter of Devonshire wrestlers, an admirable sparrer and an enthusiastic upholder of the virtues of Devonshire cider and cream." And in the pulpit he tried to reform conduct rather than to expound doctrine and was a stern denouncer of bad language, strong drink and "the filthy habit of smoking."—St. James' Gazette.

Disappearing Home Life.

The flat dweller ought not to keep a dog, prefers not to keep a cat, cannot have a garden, has no chance of keeping house, has no possible place for memories and, most emphatic of all, has no use or accommodation for babies. Although it may be possible to make homes without kittens or babies or flowers or memories or cupboards, the spirit of home is hard to woo and win without any of them.—Fortnightly Review.

Go Right at It.

"Of course you know that germs communicate sickness?"

"Yes," answered the man who is apprehensive about his health, "and the worst of it is that they get right down to business in their communications, instead of employing the scientific circumlocution of the medical profession."—Exchange.

Trying to Make a Hit.

Judge—Do you acknowledge the charge brought before the court of throwing your wife to the ground and knocking her head repeatedly against the floor? Prisoner (evasively)—I was only trying to make a hit with her, your honor.—Judge.

A Substitute.

"I am sorry, my dear sir, but I neglected to bring my surgical instruments with me."

"That will be all right, doctor. The plumber who has been working in the cellar has left his tools here."—Exchange.

The Aurora Borealis.

The aurora borealis, or northern light, is something that we have all heard about, but very few, perhaps, can give any explanation of it. No one definitely knows what causes it, but the scientists are pretty well agreed that it is due to electricity. They believe that the light is made by the recomposition of the positive and negative electricity always in the upper and lower strata of air, respectively. M. Lenstrom made an interesting experiment in Finland in 1882, his object being to determine the nature of the aurora. He had the peak of a mountain surrounded by a copper wire, pointed at intervals with tin nibs. When he had charged the wire with electricity a yellow light appeared on the tin tips, and an examination of the light by the spectroscope revealed the greenish yellow ray that is a marked feature of the aurora. This evidence among scientists is almost convincing, for it is by means of the spectroscope that we discover the constituent parts of the sun and the stars.—Exchange.

"Thou Diest on Point of Fox."

Fox blades were celebrated all through the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries for their excellent temper, and mention of them is frequent in English drama. This is their history:

There was a certain Julian del Rei, believed to be a Morisco, who set up a forge at Toledo in the early part of the sixteenth century and became famous for the excellence of his sword blades, which were regarded as the best of Toledo. That city had for many ages previous been renowned for swordmaking, it being supposed that the Moors introduced the art, as they did so many good things, from the east.

Julian del Rei's mark was a little dog, which came to be taken for a fox, and so the "fox blade" or simply "fox" for any good sword. See "Henry V.," act 4, scene 4, "Thou diest on point of fox." The brand came to be imitated in other places, and there are Solingen blades of comparatively modern manufacture which still bear the little dog of Julian del Rei.—London Notes and Queries.

A Royal Snake Slaughterer.

The "secretary bird" is one of the most precious birds in South Africa. It is royal game, and any person destroying one is liable to a fine of £50. Majestic looking birds, they stand about three feet high and generally go in pairs. They are of drab color, with black, feathery legs, and are valued for their propensity for killing snakes. Where the secretary bird is seen there are sure to be many reptiles about. The bird beats down its adversary first with one wing and then with the other, at the same time trampling on it with its feet until the snake is sufficiently stunned to catch it by the head with its claws. Then the bird rises far up in the air and drops its victim to the ground, to be killed. By this means thousands of venomous reptiles are destroyed.—London Scraps.

Natural History.

"Whah is you been workin'?" asked Miss Miami Brown.

"Up to one o' deshere garridges whar dey keep de automobiles."

"I s'pose you likes 'em better dan mules."

"Well, de diff'unce is dat a mule kicks wif his hin' feet an' de automobile is mo' li'ble to butt same as a goat."—Washington Star.

A Good Qualification.

The mystery of the negro mind is illustrated by a story which the Philadelphia Record prints. John, the colored applicant for the position of butler in a family living in one of the fashionable suburbs of Philadelphia, strove to impress his would be employer with his entire fitness for the place.

"Oh, yes, suh," he said, "I'is wholly well educated, suh. I'is passed a civil service examination."

"Indeed," responded the gentleman. "Well, le very fine. I'm sure, but I can't say that that will be of any particular value to me in a butler."

"No?" said the surprised applicant. "It shows in stronger how governors's tastes do differ. Now, Mr. Williams," sending his former employer, "he say, 'John, one thing I demun' in civil service to such gemuls,' an' he done gave me a mendustion o' three, suh, an' that's the tree."

Then the gentleman saw a great light. He replied:

"Yes, you are quite right, John. Civil service is a very important and rather unusual virtue, so if you have passed that examination I think we'll consider you engaged."

A Mogul Hero.

Here is a little vignette of Babar, the first of the great moguls. At eleven he succeeded to his kingdom of Ferghana. His father was accidentally killed, and "I," says the boy, "immediately mounted in great haste and, taking such followers as were at hand, set out to secure my throne." He succeeded in holding it, nearly lost it by trusting a traitor who was "the best player at leapfrog he had ever seen" and actually lost it by grasping at the possession of Samarkand. Then came two years of wandering. Then he got Ferghana again and lost it a second time by trying to make his Mongol soldiers restore their loot to the peasantry. And all this before he was seventeen! Thirty-two years later he died, the last scene being the most striking of all. His darling son Humayun was desperately ill. Only some great sacrifice could save him, said the doctor. He entered the chamber, walked round the bed three times, saying, "Oh me be thy suffering," and a few days afterward died.—London Spectator.

The Dogskin Wouldn't Go Round.

Hungary swarms with barristers. It is the greatest ambition of the Hungarian peasant to make one of his sons an advocate.

The son of a small farmer in the neighborhood of Budapest was sent by his father to the law school of that town, but either from lack of parts or the necessary application he was plucked in the qualifying examination.

Not daring to return to the paternal abode, simply handed after all the money that had been spent on his education, he concocted and executed the plan of forging a legal diploma. The father was not, however, so ignorant as not to be aware that such diplomas are always written on parchment—kutya-ber (dogskin—in Hungary.

"Why is your certificate not made out on kutya-ber?" asked the old man.

"The fact is, father," coolly replied the youth, "there are more barristers than dogs in Hungary, and so there is not enough kutya-ber to make diplomas for us all."—London Answers.

Gen's Dry Humor.

When the gallant Welsh captain David Gam was sent forward by Henry V. to reconnoiter the French army before the battle of Agincourt he found that the enemy outnumbered the English by about five to one. His report to the king is historic.

"There are enough to be killed, enough to be taken prisoners and enough to run away."

This quaint forecast of the result of the battle at once spread through the camp, and doubtless every yeoman archer of the valiant company felt an inch taller. We know that it was almost literally justified by the event. Poor Gam's dry humor was equaled by his courage. He was killed while in the act of saving the life of his prince.—London Standard.

Distilled Water.

Distilled water after having been exposed to the air is one of the most salutarious of drinks. Its daily use in measured quantities is helpful in cases of dyspepsia and greatly assists the gastric functions of the body. Every large steamer carries a water distilling apparatus by which sea water is made fresh. In the days before steamers primitive distilling apparatus was used on warships and vessels carrying passengers.

A Postal Deficit.

"Pa, what is meant by the postal deficit?"

"The things your mother always forgets to put on a postal card."—Detroit Free Press.

Sleepless.

Stubbs—Why don't you consult a doctor about your insomnia? Stobbs—What! And run up more bills? Why, it's because of what I owe him now that I can't sleep.

Wanted Full Credit.

"Now, my little man, you are accused of striking another boy and knocking out one of his teeth."

"Please me, judge, two of his teeth."—Life.

When He Enjoys Home.

"Does your husband enjoy his home?"

"Yes—whenever I want him to take me to the theater."—Cleveland Leader.

a. Well, this is surely the limit!

Have a shine while you wait for the mail?

How did it get there? Somebody rise and explain, for folks will surely want to know. This is once when all are "pokes."

It is contrary to the ordinance; it is out of harmony with things, not in keeping with the times; its an eye sore.

If it is permitted to stand and do business, why not have a Schnegger at the foot of Volusia, an oil shell at the foot of Orange, a dope joint down at Live Oak, bill boards at the entrances to the bridges, and so on without end.

A Phoenix Purchase.

The late Henry Sabin, who was guide, philosopher and friend to many book lovers within a thousand miles of New York, was a most successful salesman. One day he called on Cobb & Huntington and showed him a rare copy of a book.

"There are two volumes of this," said Mr. Miller. "The other volume is in perfect order, as you see this one is. You cannot possibly do them justice you, for you know you have nothing like this in your library."

"What is the price?" asked the enthused king.

"Seven hundred dollars," said the bookman.

"Those are two valuable volumes for my library," Mr. Huntington exclaimed.

Mr. Miller went back to his place and sent the books to Mr. Huntington's house with a bill for $700. Next day the railroad king sent for him.

"Why did you send me those books?" he demanded sharply.

"Because you bought them," was the bookman's calm reply.

"I certainly did not!" cried the tall Senator.

"Oh, yes, you did!" answered Mr. Miller. "You'll remember perfectly well when I told you what you said. You told me distinctly: 'Those are two valuable volumes for my library.'"—Harper's Weekly.

Books of Reference.

Newspaper editors like to answer questions addressed to them by their readers if they are not too hard—and they deem themselves as artists rather than as accessories to a misdemeanor when they are appealed to for information "to decide a bet." But they wonder sometimes why certain questions are put to them for entirement when the answers are to be found in one of those very accessible books—an almanac, a gazetteer and a small dictionary.

These are books of reference that ought to be in every home library however small. We guess that they are, but that they are sometimes dusty with disuse or out of easy reach on a top shelf. It is well to have an almanac, a dictionary or an atlas handy when you are reading your newspaper. By consulting them frequently the reader will find his daily paper relative his early historical studies to present events and makes his touch with the world closer and more significant. Ralph Ely and Art Hill, of Corry, Pa., are here for the winter season. The former is occupying the Norton cottage on Fairview avenue, and the latter a guest at The Gables.

H. L. Pierce, who recently purchased the Palmer property on North Ridgewood avenue, made a short business trip to Charleston, South Carolina, this week.

The Maxine, Capt. Chat Odom, brought in another lighter load of supplies this Thursday morning from the Tomoka river. The rock is for Contractor S. H. Gove.

Master Charles Corey, son of Mrs. N. M. Corey, of the Singer Sewing Machine Agency on North Beach street, left Wednesday for Tampa, where he will spend the holidays with his grandparents.

Miss Mercy Negus and Miss Capron, of Corry, Penn., are here to spend the winter, being quartered in the Norton cottage, on Fairview avenue. Miss Negus is a trained nurse and was employed at both the Dr. Klock and Dr. Robinson sanitariums last winter.

Charles Walters and Henry Piepgrass returned the forepart of the week from a several days' trip down the river in the latter's launch, Resolicheus. They contemplated going as far south as Banana river, but on reaching Titusville found the sandflies and mosquitoes so troublesome that they turned back. They made some very good catches of fish. Wednesday Messrs. Walters, Piepgrass and L. D. Pritcher made a fishing trip to the inlet in the Angelicheus.
